RED SOX IN TENTH

Defeat Yankees in Warm Pitchers' Battle, 1 to 0.

LEONARD SHADES CULLOP

Hooper and Scott Field Well and Walker Makes Double Play Unassisted.

BOSTON, September 30. -"Dutch" Leonard's left-handed shoots New York, 1 to 0, in a ten-inning game today. For nine innings Cullop, the opposing pitcher, had held the Red Sox scoreless, allowing only four hits. On the first ball pitched in the tenth Scott singled sharply to left. Carrigan, intending to sacrifice, was safe on bunt which upset the infield so that first base was uncovered. Batting in the pinch for Leonard, Thomas bunted successfully along the third base line The run was scored by McNally, who ran for Scott, when Hooper lifted a fly well into right field for a sacrifice. The game was one not only of effective pitching, but of tight fielding that turned back several threatened cores. Scott tripled in the fifth with one out, but was thrown out at the plate subsequently on a sharp infield play. In the seventh Gardner and Scott singled, after two were out, but were left when Carrigan flied out.

New York's greatest bid for a score developed in the ninth inning, when Bauman, a pinch hitter, and Peckinpaugh each singled, after one man was out. Maisel, batting for Pipp, sent a long drive into Hooper's hands, and "Home Run" Baker, after fouling off six balls, grounded to Hoblitzell for the third out.

Hooper and Scott did some great fielding, and Walker contributed an unusual double play unassisted. Racing in for Alexander's low line drive, the center fielder continued to second
